

When I saw this movie it was life changing. I realized when I looked around at everyone that someone is always alone. I know it feels to be alone in this world; it's very painful. I always thought life was good for everyone until I had problems of my own. I understand what you are going through and I hope everyone realizes that everyone is loved. I wanna save someone. The questions is, "Do you?"

Before I went to see this movie I was atheist. Well, now that has changed. During the movie I cried. Not just during the sad parts, I cried through the whole thing. I don't really know why but I know because of this movie I questioned my beliefs and now I'm Christian.

What people don't understand is that everyone goes through a time in their life when they need someone to turn to. This is the friend that you should keep, cause you know that no matter what that person is going to be there. To save a life is such a fantastic movie, which I thought really brought out this.

From the age of 16 to almost 21, my arms told the story that my heart couldn't. When I was a freshman in college, Jesus found me. It's amazing what can happen when someone reaches out to you and says "Hey! You're WORTH something!". I'm now 24, and can honestly say that without Jesus and the way He spoke through the people who are now my best friends in the world...I wouldn't be alive right now. This movie is incredible. Take the time...save a life.

This movie impacted my life in so many ways, but I think all I need to say is that I'm so much closer to God than I've ever been after seeing that movie. Jake's hardships were so similar to mine and many other teenagers in the world, and he encouraged the start of change in my life. I went home and praised God for sending me his word through this movie.

-Teen Spirit-

Special Event ~ This is a movie event that will leave you thinking about your life.

If you are a teen ~ go to this event ~ postings in the margins are from teens on the "To Save A Life" movie website.

Cost ~ an open heart.

6/5/2010 - 6:30 - 9:30 pm

OLSH-SASH Gym

Pizza & drinks provided

I thought the movie would have a cheesy predictable plot like other Christian movies I've seen. Instead, I was brought to tears when I saw it. It is one of the best movies I have ever seen. It was also emotional for me because I was suicidal for a few months of my life. Praise God for a group of supportive people who brought me out of that stage in my life. This movie needs to be shown to kids, Christian or not, everywhere.

The character that I most relate to is Andrea, the one that everyone thinks is almost too outgoing when it comes to church. At school I've heard kids call me church girl. I'm what they call middle class. I feel at home with the rejects, but could hang out with the 'higher up'. When I love the unloved, the popular kids hate me more, for a while I stopped loving people, then I saw this movie and was inspired. I went back to school with a goal to love the unloved, and make them know that they are God's children. The ironic thing about going to a small town school is that everyone knows what people are like at youth group and at school, and it is the same as the movie, there are so many fakers. Still I know I am blessed, I know that I still have God and am not alone in my trials

When I saw this movie I cried thinking about my school and how people are treated. The movie has changed my life and I'm going to change others.

The character that most resembles me is Jake. I used to walk down the halls with tons of friends. Now that I've seen, I am really moved to make a difference. To Save A Life is the best movie I have ever seen, changing my life and others'. My old friends are getting in huge trouble while I'm at church with my new church friends and my life has become to much better. I thank the creators of this movie. You all have changed my life!